Mobile phone addiction

The recent explosion of iPhones, Androids, and other smartphones has provided people with the ability to access the entirety of the Internet on-the-go and at any given moment. Cell phones are constantly being improved by expanding upon their functionalities, which in turn increases the likelihood of overuse and addiction.

Youngsters use text messaging more than any other mode of communication, so it may be hard to tell if they really have an addiction or not. But, youngsters who check constantly their phones, get angry if you interrupt them and are so preoccupied with texting that they skip sleep and don't get their work done; they may be compulsive "texters" and this is more than just a distraction as it is also associated with a low academic performance.
